About the Artist - Jennifer Drucker

Born in NYC and currently residing on Long Island, Jennifer received her first camera for her eighth birthday. She has been creating photographs ever since.

Jennifer graduated with a BFA in photography from C.W. Post, Long Island University in 1991 where she studied with Arthur Leipzig and Joan Powers. She was presented with the “Photography Award for Artistic Excellence” upon graduating. She recently finished her MFA also at C.W. Post where she studied with world-renowned photographer and artist Frank Dituri.

After three years of assisting still life and architectural photographers in NYC, she returned to work on Long Island as a commercial photographer.

Now solely creating fine art, her photographs have been included in numerous exhibits in both the United States and Europe. She was recently included in an exhibition at the International Museum of Women in Art in Abruzzo, Italy where her work is now part of the permanent collection.

Jennifer’s newest work explores her relationship with God and her Roman Catholic upbringing. “As a child I have vivid memories of sleeping in my grandmother’s bed and staring at the wall where a print of Jesus hung. Even after the lights were off his eyes would glow in the dark, watching me.”
